DON'T MAKE LIONFISH PETS IN THE BAHAMAS!

The Lionfish is an invasive species in The Bahamas. They have arrived from their home range in the Indian & South Pacific Oceans, survived, and are now thriving throughout the archipelago, threatening our precious marine environment. We are encouraging the public not to make a home for them as pets.

Please help support the Invasive Alien Species (IAS) project in controlling lionfish populations by discouraging the sale and trade of Lionfish as aquarium items in The Bahamas.
